Colonial Trolley Rails Sold By City For Junk

Trackage of Abandoned Colonial Division Sold to Kingston Scrap Iron & Metal Company—More Street Signs to Be Erected—Additional Benches to Be Placed in Forsyth Park.

When the Colonial Division of the trolley road was abandoned, it was understood that the trolley rails would be turned over to the city provided the city removed them from the street, and Tuesday evening the board of public works opened three bids that had been received from local junk concerns for the abandoned trackage. The Kingston Scrap Iron & Metal Company of Hasbrouck avenue was the highest bidder. The trackage was sold to that company. The trackage was sold on condition that it be removed from the streets as fast as the rails were torn up by the street forces, and that the trackage would be stored in some convenient place and when all of the rails had been taken up that an expert agreeable to both the city and the buyer would then grade the rails into three classes—relaying rails, rerolling rails, and scrap rails, and that the city would be paid different prices for the three classifications. The successful bid follows:

For relaying rails, $16 per ton.
For rerolling rails, $10.50 per ton.
For scrap rails, $9 per ton.
For scrap such as spikes, bolts, etc., $8 per ton.

Two other bids were received. The Kingston Fur & Junk Company bid was a flat price of $8.25 per ton for all three classifications of rails and the same price for scrap while for the copper the bid was $10.62 per ton.

The Kingston Fur & Junk Company bid was:

For relaying rails, $10.75 per ton.
For rerolling rails, $10.75 per ton.
For scrap rails, $8.10 per ton.
For scrap, $8.10 per ton.
For copper, 10% cents per pound.

Some time ago residents of Stanley street petitioned the board to improve that street and were informed that all unimproved streets when improved must be paid for by the residents of the street who are to pay 75 per cent of the cost while the city pays the remaining 25 per cent. The city engineer had estimated the cost of the work and notified the property owners.

The cost was thought excessive and Tuesday evening another petition was filed with the board asking that the work be not done. Still another petition was also filed with the board stating that it was believed that if the proposed grade was amended, the cost would be reduced and asking that the grade be amended if possible.

The entire matter was referred to City Engineer Hallinan to establish a new grade if feasible and estimate the probable cost and report back at the next meeting.

Several of the property owners on Stanley street were present at the meeting and asked that if the cost of improving the street was too great, that the city at least place it in a reasonable condition.

One Station at Bus Terminal.

A petition was received from the Standard Oil Company asking permission to erect a 16 by 12 foot service station on the bus terminal property at the West Shore station. This property had been leased from the Cornell estate by the city for bus terminal purposes and the city has expended considerable money in improving and grading the grounds so that it could be used by the big buses.

It was stated that the building of the gas station would not interfere with the parking of buses on the grounds. After some discussion a special committee consisting of Commissioners Funderburk and Van Etten was appointed to confer with the Standard Oil Company and ascertain if that company would reimburse the city for the money expended on the grounds.

Wrecked Street Wants Light.

A petition from property owners on Wrecked street asking for street lighting was referred to the committee on lighting.

Main Street Extension.

A petition from property owners on Main street asking for a new road and that the bridge at the foot of the hill be rebuilt was read and referred to the street committee to report back at the next meeting.

Contractor Barty who has erected nine houses on the extension was present and said it would help to build up that locality if the board would lay a good road to the houses. Later when it was all built up the property owners would be willing to pay their share of having the street improved.

West O'Reilly Street Paved.

A petition from property owners on West O'Reilly street asking that the street be paved and that the street be widened and referred to the street committee.

Albion O'Reilly was present and spoke in favor of the petition. He said that the street was in bad condition and it was one of the very few streets leading off Broadway that had not been repaired in years.

Other Matters.

John M. Dittus, who resides at the corner of East Chester street and Hemlock avenue, asked the board if it was safe for him to go ahead and erect the garage he had been granted permission to build. He said that Hemlock avenue in front of his property was used as dumping grounds for logs by Frank A. Waters and that he was unable to get on his property from the Hemlock avenue side under present conditions. The matter was referred to Corporation Counsel James Jenkins and Superintendent Van Keuren to investigate and report back at the next meeting.

Elizabeth M. Kolb, a Kingston girl, who is a member of the faculty of the Ulster schools, wrote asking if the board expected to employ playground directors this season, and if so she would like to be engaged. The communication was referred to the committee on parks and playgrounds.

Street Signs.

Petitions to erect street signs were read and referred to Superintendent Van Keuren.

Mrs. E. Northrop desired to erect a sign at 540 Albany avenue. Al King wrote asking permission to install signs in front of Dr. Rosenbergs, 307 Wall street, and Max Perlman, 71 Crown street.

Cornell Hose Black Party.

The request of Cornell Hose Company to use part of Abel street for a block party on June 14 was read and granted by the board.

Parking on John Street.

Albert N. Cook appeared before the board in reference to restricting parking of cars on the northern side of John street between Clinton avenue and Fair street. Parking is allowed on both sides of the street and it was impossible to use his driveway, especially on Saturday nights.

Jury Will Again Pass On Scott

Judge Brothers Rules That Russell Scott Cannot Be Executed Until Jury Had Again Passed on His Case—Has a Chance of Escaping Gallows.

Chicago, May 26.—Russell Scott, the youth who followed the primrose path from the position of a wealthy and respected Detroit broker, to the role of a down-and-out bandit-slayer, was almost happy as he sat in his cell at the county jail here today. His high spirits followed yesterday's victory in the first legal skirmish with state prosecutors who seek to hang him for murder.

Scott, recently returned from the state hospital for the insane at Chester, presented a sad spectacle as he appeared in the court of Judge William V. Brothers. He was without funds and without counsel. When Assistant State's Attorney Gorman and Byrne asked Judge Brothers to set an immediate date for Scott's execution, the slayer paled. The noose that he had escaped four times so narrowly, again seemed dangling over his head.

But the court blocked the prosecutors' move. He ruled that Scott, who had been sent to Chester after a jury found he had become insane since sentenced, could not be executed until a jury had again passed on his case. The slayer was returned here to hang after a commission of state attorneys had declared he had recovered his sanity.

Just when Scott was rejoicing over this news, his old attorney, William Scott Stewart, came in and announced he would again take charge of the case. The second sanity trial was set for next Tuesday.

The case is making legal history. It is without precedent in the annals of American jurisprudence. Scott was sentenced to hang for the murder of Joseph Maurer, a drug clerk, during a holdup. Two hours before his scheduled execution, a writ was issued ordering a test of his sanity. A jury found him insane and sent him to Chester. With it understood that if he recovered he should be returned to Cook county and hanged. A week ago state attorneys declared he had recovered.

With Judge Brothers ruling that Scott cannot hang until a jury has declared him sane, and with his attorney prepared to go to the supreme court, if necessary, to prove that his release from the Chester asylum was illegal, Scott is believed to have better than an even chance of escaping the gallows.

SEARCH FOR SON OF POLICE LIEUTENANT.

Buffalo, N. Y., May 26.—Spirited away as he played in the rear of his home, six-year-old John Metz, 3rd, today is the object of a search in three states by police, deputy sheriffs and state troopers. Police are searching for a touring car bearing an Ohio license and containing two men and a woman, which was seen to pull away from in front of the Metz home a few minutes after the boy disappeared.

Lieutenant Metz, the father of the boy, said that he had been separated from his wife for almost three years. Recently threats were made by his wife and relatives to take the boy, he said. Metz recently learned that his wife had gone to live with her parents in Bellville, Ohio.

BELEIVE RIVAL RUM RUNNERS STAGED BATTLE.

Methuen, Mass., May 26.—Six shots aroused citizens of Brown street shortly after midnight. One bullet crashed through the window of the home of Arthur Manley, narrowly missed his two daughters, Hilda, 17, and Bernice, 18, and fell on the dining room table.

Patrolman John Donahue on the street outside said he saw a car loaded with men while by. Police believe the shooting was a battle between rival rum runners.

Wanted to Know Fine in Advance

Herman Alpert Seeks Information of Judge But Is Not Informed Until After He Pleads in Police Court.

While Motorcycle Officer Soper early Tuesday evening was driving his motorcycle past the horse and wagon of Herman Alpert of No. 53 Murray street, he heard the low moan of a calf, and glancing keenly at the wagon he saw the head of an animal projecting from under some burlap bags. He promptly stopped Alpert and investigated and found that Alpert had a calf with all four feet together thrown on top of the wagon load and covered over with burlap bags.

Alpert was escorted to the city hall where the calf was released and Alpert was informed that he was under arrest on a charge of cruelty to animals. He deposited $25 cash bail for his appearance in police court this morning.

When arraigned before Judge Shufeldt and asked how he pleaded to the charge he replied:

"How much are you going to fine me?"

"I am not telling you," replied Judge Shufeldt. "how do you plead?" Alpert scratched his head and then said "Guilty."

"Fine you $15," said Judge Shufeldt.

Sargent May Be First Witness In Dry Inquiry

Called in Senate's Investigation Into the Legality of President Coolidge's "Dry" Order—"Dry's" Lead Attack Upon Order.

Washington, May 26.—The Senate's investigation into the legality of President Coolidge's order authorizing Federal prohibition badges for state officials, will get under way this week, it was learned today. In the wake of a drive to prohibit their employment by specific act of Congress.

With both Republicans and Democrats looking on the President's order as a "usurpation of power," the inquiry is expected to result in legislation forbidding the internal revenue bureau from employing any state officers in enforcing the national dry law. This movement, already given bi-partisan support, would be aimed at wiping out the President's action as a precedent for the future.

The committee was instructed in the resolution authorizing the investigation to inquire into the legality of the order and then to report to the Senate whether legislation was "advisable or necessary." The instructions had the endorsement of administration leaders.

May Call Sargent.

The inquiry probably will be launched Thursday and indications are it will be conducted by the full committee. Reports were current that Attorney General John G. Sargent would be the first witness summoned, to explain his public statement holding the order constitutional.

The attorney general's opinion, it was said, failed to cover a score of constitutional arguments raised against the order in Senate debates and members of the committee are anxious to hear Sargent on these points.

Mellon May Be Summoned.

Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon, who has taken "full responsibility" for the order, may also be summoned to the witness stand. Mellon announced he thought the order was entirely legal but that it was never intended to be generally applied throughout the country and for the present would be confined to California.

All indications today pointed to the committee ultimately deciding that the president was without constitutional authority to issue the order and that his action therefore was illegal. A majority of the committee, including Senators Cummins, H. of Iowa, chairman, Borah, R. of Idaho, Goff, R. of West Virginia, Means, R. of Colorado, Overman, D. of North Carolina, King, D. of Utah, Caraway, D. of Arkansas, and Neely, D. of West Virginia, have so contended in Senate debate. The president's lone defender has been Senator Walsh, D. of Montana, also a member of the committee.

There appeared in fact almost a unanimity of opinion that the president had no power to issue the order. On the other hand, there was a sharp division of opinion over the legality of the act of appointing any state officer as a federal dry agent. Some members of the committee, including Cummins and Borah, hold that the appointment can be made but that it would ultimately force the state officer to resign "one or the other of his jobs." Other members feel the appointment itself would be illegal.

"Dry's" Lead Attack.

"The president had no authority whatsoever to issue an order naming anybody eligible for appointment as federal dry agents," said Senator Cummins, the committee chairman. "Congress took away all his authority over prohibition agents in the Volstead act. I think the internal revenue bureau, however, could appoint state officers as dry agents without any statement from the President, but if they accepted, they would face the loss of their state positions on the ground of incompatibility if the question were ever raised against them in court. The President's order though has no more legal weight than if he had whispered it in Andrew's ear."

Borah joined Cummins in this attitude, declaring the Coolidge order had no more standing legally than a speech. Goff and King, however, declared the appointments would be illegal and that the President's order was as dangerous as a precedent, it should be set aside.

The inquiry will be conducted without regard to the wet and dry lines, usually established on every question affecting prohibition. In this instance, the drys actually have led the wet in attacking the order and in demanding its revocation.

POLICE SQUADS BATTERS; ARMY SQUAD OF STRIKERS.

New York, May 26.—Four squads of police were necessary to disperse an angry mob of three thousand persons, led by 150 far strikers, today, after they had backed two private detectives into a hallway, scuffled their drawn revolvers, and threatened to lynch them. The two detectives were rescued just as the crowd prepared to rush them, apparently for the purpose of wrecking a factory in which strike breakers are employed.

A secondary riot which followed a fist fight between two workers and two strikers was quelled with the arrest of all four.

Coolidge and Dawes Differ On Farm Relief

Vice President Dawes Disagrees With President Coolidge On Principles of Farm Relief—Capitol Hill Rumors Say There Is No Particular Warmth Between Coolidge and Dawes.

Washington, May 26.—A little political cloud, no bigger than a man's hand but which by 1928 may assume menacing proportions, appeared in the azure Republican sky today, and set every tongue on Capitol Hill a-wagging.

President Coolidge and Vice President Dawes apparently have parted company over the controversial issue of farm relief.

The defeat of the corn belt's Haugen Bill in the house was brought about by a coalition of conservative eastern Republicans and southern Democrats, after President Coolidge had notified them that he considered the basic principles embodied in the measure to be "radical" and "price fixing" and "economically unsound." He referred specifically to the "equalization fee" feature, under which the government would virtually guarantee disposal of surplus crops in foreign markets at the domestic market prices.

Today the same principles were declared by Vice President Dawes to be "economically sound." The vice president did not mention the Haugen Bill, or any other specific measure for farm relief. He merely expressed the opinion, in a memorandum written for Senator James E. Watson, Republican of Indiana, that the equalization fee plan is "economically sound." In reading the memorandum to the senate, the Indiana senator declared he had been converted to the Haugen Plan. The more he studied it, he said, the more convinced he became that it provided the remedy for agricultural distress and the "surplus crop" problem, which has been described by economists as the root of this disaster.

Dawes a Potential Candidate.

The full political significance of this situation began to dawn on the politicians of the Capitol today.

Vice President Dawes is a potential candidate for the presidency in 1928, according to his friends. At least, he is considered a possibility. So is Senator Watson. And so is former Gov. Frank O. Lowden of Illinois, who almost captured the nomination in 1920, and who since that time has been assiduously cultivating the agricultural west. Lowden is one of the strongest backers of the Haugen Plan. Furthermore, the former governor and the vice president are close friends.

Lowden's friends have made no secret of the fact that they expect him to be a candidate for the nomination in 1928, and some of them have privately added "irrespective of whether Mr. Coolidge is or is not a candidate for another term."

Political Disaster Threatened.

Congressmen from the corn belt states are virtually in revolt against the administration's policy on farm relief. During the stormy debate that preceded the defeat of the Haugen Bill, speaker after speaker "warned the White House" that unless it accepted the Haugen Plan or brought forward some such similar plan "political disaster" would be visited upon the party in the approaching congressional elections and in the national election of 1928.

The defeat of Senator William B. McKinley in Illinois and of Senator Robert N. Stanford in Oregon has increased the political apprehension of the westerners.

"Lack of Sympathy" Rumors.

A whispering campaign has been going on in Washington for some time that there has been no particular "warmth" between Mr. Coolidge and Mr. Dawes.

The President is said to have disapproved, although never openly or in any public way, of the vice president's campaign for a change in the Senate rules.

Mr. Dawes has consistently declined to sit in Cabinet meetings—a custom which Mr. Coolidge inaugurated when he came to Washington to assume the office of the vice presidency.

These and similar small incidents, coupled with the fact that the vice president rarely visits the White House, have combined to produce many and varied rumors of the "lack of sympathy" between the opposite ends of Pennsylvania avenue.

In new evidence as "unsound," Dawes has given these rumors new currency and force.

DOUBLE EMBROIDERY SHOCKS CAPITAL SOCIETY

Washington, May 26.—Capitol society got a shock today when it became known that two young debutantes, whose families are wealthy and socially prominent, had eloped to Baltimore Saturday and were married.

The girls are Miss Lila Rosevelt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert B. Rosevelt, who married James L. Rosevelt, Miss Grace Warraman, daughter of Mrs. Alexander L. Loran, who married George Carter of New York.

Announcement of the marriage was made here by the mothers of the two brides, but no details were given.

UNCLE SAM AS WOMAN'S BOSS

Not Recognized Before Civil War as Government Employees.

Washington.—A woman was recently elected mayor of Seattle. Another announced her intention of accepting the candidacy to succeed her husband as governor. The mandate committee of the League of Nations included a woman delegate. In Washington, D. C., a woman is in general charge of applying the law to bootleggers.

Yet only little more than 80 years ago a woman, to procure employment from the government, had to conceal her sex. She had to apply for her work, the copying of land warrants for the general land office, in the name of a male relative. It was done at home and she received $1,200 a year, the salary received by men for that service.

In 1862 a woman was allowed a clerk's desk in the Treasury department—to substitute for a man. She was accorded the privilege of replacing her husband, who had fallen ill, in order that the family might be supported. She did her husband's work and received his salary—not because she was as competent as he, but because she registered as a man.

To the Treasury department also belongs the distinction of first employing women in their own right. Gen. Francis Elias Spinner, appointed United States treasurer by President Lincoln conceived the idea as a means of saving the government money in those expensive war times.

"A woman can use scissors better than a man," he told Salmon P. Chase, secretary of the treasury, "and she will do it cheaper. I want to employ women to cut the treasury notes."

Women Flocked In.
Following the consent of the treasury chief, scores of needy women, whom the war had left heretofore supporters, flocked to General Spinner's little room in the nation's bank. Here he slept, to be within call in case of trouble. Here every woman was sure of a hearing.

She did not receive an official appointment nor had she any official existence. She was merely handed a pair of scissors and paid $800 a year out of the fund provided by congress for temporary clerks. Cutting treasury notes into quarters was considered "light work," but, as each note trimmer discovered, a few hours later it worried the shoulders and blistered the fingers.

Appreciating this opportunity to support themselves, however, more and more women beset the general for jobs. Believing that the nimbleness of their fingers and their patience would be assets in the manipulation of fractional currency, he opened this field to them and also the detection of counterfeiters.

The results pleased him. Speaking of women as counterfeit detectors, he said: "A man will examine a note systematically and deduce logically from the imperfect engraving, blurred vignette or indistinct signature that it is counterfeit—and be wrong four cases out of ten. A woman picks up a note, looks at it in a demure fashion of her own and says, 'That's counterfeit.' Why? Because it is, she answers promptly—and is right eleven times out of twelve."

Many Criticisms Heard.
Notwithstanding the satisfaction of the employer, criticisms were received from indignant persons all over the country, individuals shocked by the radical action of the treasurer. Even at home he encountered opposition. Hugh McCulloch, successor to Secretary Chase, scorned the presence of a tea pot on each window ledge. "There are too many tea pots in the treasury of the nation," he complained—after which remark the innocent kettle became the universal emblem of woman's usefulness for government service.

"Nobody ever heard that the costly cigars and tobacco which filled the men clerk's 'smoking,' to the exhilaration of body and soul, was a like sign of his inability to perform prolonged service without the aid of stimulants," said Mary Clemmer Ames in her book, "Ten Years in Washington," "but the tea pots were ridiculed out and ceased to distill the gentle beverage for the woman worker at her noonday lunch."

Congressmen, necessarily concerned with increasing their constituency, vented their eloquence in the depreciation of women workers, so that the males might be favored. Arguing that a woman was not a clerk but an employee, they decreed she could never, regardless of her services, earn more than $200 a year. On the other hand, no man, were he only a messenger executing the instructions of a woman, could receive less than $1,200.

Defendants, women dared not complain. As one worthy official told them, they "were only here by sufferance and could all be turned out tomorrow."

A few appealed to the secretary of the treasury, but his report that "4000 is enough for any woman to receive for her work" soon altered them. In the Department of the Interior the secretary constantly demanded women workers to make plans for the men.

But Continued to Grow.
Even the women's friend in congress Representative H. L. Darrow of Massachusetts, opposed all projects to raise their pay because, by setting their humble positions desirable to men, they would be compelled to leave the government service altogether.

Despite antagonism, their firm friend, General Spinner, remained their ally.

"The experiment of employing females as clerks," he wrote in his report of 1868, "has been, so far as this office is concerned, a complete success. The truth is that many of the female clerks now do as much work, if not more, and do it as well, if not better, for $800 per annum, than some of the male clerks are able to do who receive a yearly salary of twice that amount."

"The female clerks, with but few exceptions, are subject to greater risks of loss by reason of miscarriages or by passing counterfeiters, for which each one is peculiarly liable and responsible, than nine-tenths of the male clerks, whose principal occupations are books and accounts. Right and fair dealing, therefore, demand that their pay should be assimilated more nearly than it now is to that of the other sex for like services and responsibility."

A generation later, when the woman's movement was progressing, General Spinner wrote: "The fact that I was instrumental in introducing women to employment in the offices of the government gives me more real satisfaction than all the other deeds of my life."

General Spinner had started a fertile movement indeed. Today there are 7,968 women in the storehouse of the nation's billions, 500 more than the male number. From the harsh employer of a handful of unrecognized women, Uncle Sam has developed, in little more than half a century, into the bountiful boss of 79,575 women, and the chief of a woman's public service that includes two governors, three congresswomen, an assistant attorney general, a state supreme court judge, many minor judges, three state secretaries, about 150 state legislators, two diplomats and two state superintendents of public instruction.—New York Times.

Sail to Hurt Pygmy Tribes With Airplane

Batavia, Java.—The expedition headed by Prof. Matthew W. Stirling of Berkeley, Cal., called recently on the government steamer Foudrinot for Soerabaya to explore the unknown interior of Dutch New Guinea.

"All the members of the expedition are in good health and ready for hardships," said Professor Stirling just before the steamer cast off. "I have the utmost confidence in your plane's motor to fly and keep flying over the jungles and mountains."

"If pygmy tribes are in New Guinea we will find them," declared Stanley A. Hedberg, historian of the expedition. "That Hoyt, mechanic, blower and repairer Ford and Photographer Pack are our own plane will not fail us and will do all we expect."

The Dutch members of the party, Dr. Van Leeuwen, biologist, and Lejeune, cartographer, also expressed confidence. They were most enthusiastic and declared that the expedition would not come back before it found pygmies.

Thickest Bed of Coal

Washington.—The thickest bed of coal in the United States, according to the United States geological survey, is a bed of sub-bituminous coal near Oil City, Pa., which ranges in thickness from 80 to 100 feet of solid coal. Such phenomenally thick beds of coal are generally of limited extent, so that other even thicker beds, if it existed, may be concealed in areas not yet prospected.

Rifman Leader Surrenders

Abd-El-Krim Who Has Led His Tribesmen For Five Years To Establish Independent Nation Surrenders, Ending One of the Bitterest Wars in History.

For Morocco, May 26.—Abd-El-Krim, Rifman chieftain who has fought for five years to establish an independent nation, surrendered to the French forces here tonight.

The French have not yet announced what action will be taken with Abd-El-Krim.

Abd-El-Krim, accompanied by his relatives, will enter the French lines at Taza this evening. He will await a decision by the French government as to what action will be taken concerning him.

The surrender of Abd-El-Krim will bring to an end one of the most bitter wars in history.

For five years Abd-El-Krim has led his tribesmen from the Rif highlands against the Spanish armies, armed and equipped with the most devices of warfare, while the Spaniards have had only such war material as they captured. For nearly two years the Rifians have opposed not only the Spanish armies, but have also opposed the powerful French forces in Morocco, after a Franco-Spanish alliance was effected in 1925.

The "Berber Cromwell"

In 1921 Abd-El-Krim was an obscure Rifman tribesman, who had been in the Spanish administrative service at Ceuta. He returned to his tribe and assuming leadership opened a warfare against the Spanish, announcing that it was his purpose to establish a Rifian Nation, free and independent of Spanish control. His leadership gained strength and with Spanish warriors and achieved victory. It was not until the French joined in the warfare against Abd-El-Krim that any measure of success was registered.

Abd-El-Krim, sometimes known as the "Berber Cromwell," created a real leadership over tribesmen who had never before bowed before any leadership. Under Abd-El-Krim they even reached the point of paying him willingly. Meanwhile Abd-El-Krim became a great figure in the Islamic World.

One of Nature's Mysteries

If you put a little salt in water it becomes. But the water stays and the salt disappears. What then happens to the salt while it is dissolved in the water? The water chemist in this small portion lighted changed with the water and the water itself will not disappear. The chemist, however, tells us there is no other substance on earth which does that which dissolved in water. It might be worth a good deal to the world to know why salt has this property.

Tailored Tweed Suit for Cool Spring Days

This handsome, tailored tweed suit of gray mixture promises to be the vogue for the cool spring days, and for general wear when the weather will not admit of thinner dresses.

Two-Piece Frock Still Holds Important Place

In spite of the fact that their popularity is overwhelming, two-piece frocks continue to hold the most important place in the fashions of the new season. They may, with truth, be called the piece de resistance of the present-day wardrobe, for with certain changes in material and slight differences in details models of this type are appropriate to practically every occasion, both day and evening.

Last season Chinese damask was probably the most important fabric for simple smart little frocks. This spring, while it has by no means passed out of the fashion picture, it has rivals in the form of frocks modeled on similar lines, but made of rayon or shantung silk instead of damask.

Few colors brought out in recent years have been more generally becoming than the tones of bois de rose which vary from the faintest tint to one that verges on tan. One finds these tones conspicuously featured in every collection of new models displayed by the best houses.

Combinations in Plaid on Spring Fashion Card

Suits with plaid skirts and with plain Tuxedo jackets colored in plaid are both new and smart. Usually the skirt is plaided in front and at the sides it is not all the way about. The jacket is the typical smoking jacket variety with long lapels of plaid. A few plain double-breasted coats are also shown with plaid skirts of harmonizing color. Jumper frocks for spring street wear come in all sorts of plaid combinations with blue being the dominant color and red, green, gold or beige forming the plaid design. Plaid scarves are offered for those who wish to use plaid sparingly. Gypsy scarves of plaid on plain dresses are prominent. Gloves with plaid cuffs are pressed into service. Crisp collars with tiny checks are popular as spring advances.

Interesting New Bags Are Now Being Shown

Bags are always interesting, especially those now on display. A bag having a sectional top equipped with a springing clasp came in two leathers, made and lined with a variety of colors. It is unique in that the bottom is folded with a metal rim or casing which protects the edge and insures greater wear, at the same time lending a smart appearance to the bag. Ten silk motifs in used for lining and fittings. Another attractive bag for immediate use is known as the over-the-shoulder bag. It is made of glazed nylon silk and has a very fine silk lining, divided inner pockets and the usual accessories.

Cotton Terry Cloth Favored
Cotton terry cloth is a pile fabric woven with two sets of wavy and one filling, one wavy forming rows of loops on the face, back or both. The wavy which forms the loops is kept very slack and the loops are let in at will by the weaver. The lighter quality, printed on one or both sides, are used for curtains and the heavier qualities for towels, etc.

Following the Waistline
Waists may follow the bag but have follow the waistline, according to fashion designers. They declare that when the waistline rises, dresses are also higher in order to preserve the proportions of the figure. One of the new materials developed for spring hats is a soft and very dainty cover known as silk crepe. Tulle dresses are favorite creations.

OWL AND SONG SPARROWS

A little family of song sparrows had come to join the barnyard people.

They had not been invited to come, nor had the farmer brought them in his big wagon, but they had arrived. They always disappeared when it came time to go to sleep and some of the animals had been able to see where they slept.

They were all so anxious to see them put their heads under their wings, which they had heard was the way birds slept.

No, these song sparrows came just at meal time and ate bread crumbs, grain, seeds, worms and fresh water. After they had finished a meal they always sang a little song, which was probably their manner of showing how much they appreciated the hospitality and kindness of the barnyard animals.

One evening the song sparrows had had their supper and had not yet flown away.

Sir William Goat—sometimes called Billy, which was a more chummy but less "grand" name—had tried to get them to talk.

"They had chirped and twittered, but Sir William had not been able to understand a word of what they had said."

Mrs. Gray Dove had gone off for a visit and there seemed to be no one who understood what the song sparrows were trying to tell them.

They were really trying to say how worried they were, for they had found their nest was very near that of Mr. Owl—and they did not know where they could go for safety.

Off they flew and their wings fluttered nervously.

The animals had all gone to bed when they heard frightened little voices and some cries.

They opened their eyes—and there, flying toward them, was the whole family of song sparrows.

"What is the trouble?" asked Mrs. Gray Dove, who had arrived home just before bedtime. "I think I can understand the way you talk."

"Oh, Mr. Owl is going to pay a visit to our nest tonight and kill us and eat our eggs."

"Oh! Oh! T-t-t-t!"

"We woke up just in time to see him coming, and we flew here, for he won't come near the barnyard on account of the farmer's gun, we've heard."

"There, there," said Mrs. Gray Dove softly. "You can make your home in the orchard near by."

The song sparrows brightened up. But in the woods old Mr. Owl was according as hard as he could.

He was scolding himself!

"If I'm not sharper," he was saying, "and quicker, too, I'll lose my reputation of being the wisest bird—yes, wise and cruel," and he blinked his eyes with rage!

In the meantime Mr. Blue Jay and Sharpy, the Squirrel, who had not been through such danger, were quarreling with each other.

Their voices were so loud that all the creatures far and near stopped whatever they were doing and listened.

"You stole my berries!" said Sharpy.

"I never did such a thing," said Mr. Blue Jay.

"Didn't he?" asked Sharpy of Mrs. Sharpy.

"Of course he did," answered Mrs. Sharpy.

"And we want them to eat," said the little squirrel, who were sitting on a fence near by listening to the quarrel.

They loved to hear a good quarrel and their daddy and Mr. Blue Jay were having a splendid one.

"You know, Sharpy," the Blue Jay was saying, "and angry voice, that I never steal!"

"What's that you say?" asked Sharpy in surprise.

And so they quarreled while the little squirrels listened delightedly. But the Song Sparrows were peaceful and happy and their worries were over.

Solution will appear tomorrow.

Solution of preceding puzzle.

Copyright, 1926, by The McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

Many a girl is single today because she couldn't stay awake while a man talked about himself.

Henel: I'm thinking of marrying Jack.

Edna: So am I. Do you know anybody who's got it?

Magistrate: "Have you appeared as a witness in a suit before?"

Witness: "Yes, of course."

"What suit was it?"

"My blue serge."

What did your wife say when you turned in last night?

Wendy Wink: "Oh, she was half asleep and thought I was the dog."

When she said, "In that you, Fido?"

PLUTARCH.

Plutarch, May 26.—On Thursday night, May 20, several members of Jr. O. A. M., from Highland with delegations from Poughkeepsie, New Paltz and Hilton motored to Plutarch and presented the district school with a beautiful new flag. About all the pupils with their parents were at the school to greet the boys. All marched in the school house and sang the Star Spangled banner. Fred Palmer an official in the Highland order carried the flag and was chairman of the evening. Oliver Stibbs of Poughkeepsie, a high official of the order gave a very interesting talk. He gave a little history of each war where the American flag had been raised in the different battles and how the American flag had come out victorious and concluded his remarks that he hoped the people and pupils of the Plutarch school would always stand for one hundred per cent Americanism. Then Fred Palmer presented the flag with a few well chosen words and the pupils recited the allegiance to the flag. In the absence of the trustee, the teacher, Mrs. Anna Reed, had a very appropriate acceptance speech read by Mrs. Richard Schneider as the teacher had a cold and could not talk. This concluded the program. Ice cream and cake was served to all present. The district and community are very fond of the new flag and wish the J. O. U. A. M. success in the good they are doing throughout the land. Three cheers were given for the flag and three cheers for Jr. O. A. M.

Mrs. Martha Hammond died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Dennis Carroll last Friday afternoon after an illness of one week. The funeral was held at the Ohtorville chapel on Sunday afternoon at three o'clock. The Rev. Frank Wilson of Cornwall officiating. Interment in Lloyd cemetery.

Dennis Carroll has been confined to his home with an attack of neuritis.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Will and family were out of town visitors on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. M. Raab of New

Paltz were callers in town on the day.

The Spider's Harbor

A species of spider inhabiting a corner of the Pacific may be found in low tide crawling around on the sand and coral reefs, but when the tide rises you search for them in vain. Each spider, when the tide starts to come in, takes refuge in a crevice or spins over her retreat a sheet of silk.

Colors Blended in Reef

Shingles may be dipped in seven shades of red, green, gray or other colors, and may be laid without a suggestion of a fixed design, producing beautiful varicolored effects.

Fat People Told To Eat Heartily

It is no longer necessary to deny yourself plenty of the foods you like. The new plan by which New York Society's fat persons are reducing is now available to the rest of the country. It consists of taking a certain harmless medicinal ingredient, purely vegetable, discovered by science, which dissolves the fat cells. It contains no thyroid or dangerous drugs. It acts quickly when well chewed and therefore it is embodied in a deliciously flavored fat-reducing chewing gum called "Slender." Local druggists are stocking a large supply in expectation of an enormous demand. They say that if you start today to "Slenderize with Slender" your fat will begin to go tomorrow.

SUMMER STYLES REACH CLIMAX AS LACY FROCKS DRIFT IN

LEAVING all responsibility of comfort to luxurious wraps, or steam heat and other practical things—gay, sheer frocks keep a summer mind all the year round and refuse to recognize a chill anywhere. All climates are gentle to them and it is just a question of more or less shirms for every season of the year. And now comes midsummer, revealing to just what lengths or heights or degrees of sheerness the gay and frivolous mode will go as a climax to its riotous career.

It appears that, with the advance of spring, fashion grew more and more fond of lace. The new season comes in leading frocks of tulle combined with georgette before the eyes of admiring throngs, followed by others of tulle and lace, then georgette and lace, next chiffon and more lace—and finally comes the all-lace gown in company with mere wisps of frocks

Tulle and Plaisie Are a Modish Mixture

Tulle, a hand-liner in spring fashion, has loaned some of its stiffness and unbending buoyancy, to accommodate itself to the many demands upon it.

It is in its softer manifestations that tulle is winning favor for dresses, for tulle coats may have a bit more stiffness about them. While there is still an over-popularity, complex to many minds concerning tulle, a complex which keeps many people from buying it, the advancing summer finds tulle distinctly among the materials listed as worth-while.

"Trottoir," a Capulet Frock by Fremont, is of Revere-blue and Violet Tulle. Bordered in Violet Broad and characterized by a Plaisie Plaisie. Flat Plaisie Stitches Down at the Side of the Frock, and a Gilet of White Plaisie.

Baboon and re-echoes from Paris mid-summer openings tell of poplins in both silk and wool, and of printed tulle as a substitute for printed chiffon. All these seem likely favorites. Tulle has already been received with ecstasies, and when printed it would appear to answer to the demand for dainty transparency, which is one of the charming features of a season that bids fair to linger in the mind as alluring in its many expressions of femininity.

Paton, who has acquired a note of authority because of his rather persistent correct guessing of what women really want, launched red unreservedly for mid-summer. Bordeaux tones are particularly liked by this master designer, and by way of being different he countenances black and white again.

LAST NIGHT on THE RADIO

Better reception there has not been in many weeks than came from WGY in the early evening. With the exception of Prof. Coffin's lecture on "Greek Religions" the program was not noteworthy. The latter program was much better—good enough to hold anyone but the most hopeless DX maniac.

Goldy and Ducky came better from WHEX, Boston, than from their WGY home, owing to the persistent but trying on everything over 400 meters.

WHEX seems to have gotten its second wind—or a few new tubes.

The Eveready Hour was especially interesting for the Harrigan and Hart songs and there was power enough to push the music through the fat frying.

Even EDRA came back, mildly and modestly, but clear and distinct.

WOK, WHEX and WLS, Chicago, WOC, Davenport and WLW, Cincinnati and WRAL, Baltimore, were among those present at about 11 o'clock.

For so small a station WJRL, Red Bank, N. J., is making a creditable showing. Only 150 watts and counting as strong as WHEX with 5,000 watts.

The Luskman Orchestra at WBSG surely made noise enough to satisfy all devotees.

Less nobody be disappointed and think this a vain thing. WJRL put "Horse" on the late program.

Something was the matter with the Red Apple Club. Usually strong, it was very weak last night.

The station that will come through every night it is on the air next summer is WDEK. Have you clipped it yet?

APPETIZING DISHES

A delicious salad which takes but a few moments to prepare is:

Apple and Onion Salad.—Dice apple, sliced, add one-fourth as much shredded or finely diced Bermuda onion, season with a teaspoonful of sugar, one-half teaspoonful of salt and a few dashes of capers.

Four or five tablespoonful of olive oil and let stand for half an hour, then add mayonnaise mixed with cream and stir well before serving.

Serve on lettuce. The addition of a half-dozen minced dates, omitting the sugar, adds much to the flavor of the salad, though it is very good without.

A nice luncheon dish is poached eggs served on a nest of seasoned spinach. Open a can of spinach if the fresh is not at hand, season lightly with butter, after draining. Save the spinach water and give it as a drink to any member of the family who needs iron or vitamins.

Soft Omelet.—Take thin slices of rare roast beef and roll each around a thin slice of bacon which has been fried until transparent but not crisp. The up or downer with a toothpick and broil. Add the fat from the bacon to some of the roast beef gravy, season with Worcestershire sauce and a tablespoonful of cream jelly. Serve hot.

Ground Beef Hash.—Chop cooked ground beef very fine, then add the chopped vegetables from a boiled potato, also chopped, using three times as much of the vegetable as the meat. Put into a frying pan, season with some of the broth from the vegetable, stir and heat until very hot; serve with a poached egg.

Chicken Turnovers.—Mix four tablespoonful of butter, add the same quantity of flour, pour over one-half cupful of chicken broth and one-half cupful of water, also one-half cupful of cream; season, add a half-cupful of sliced mushrooms, and three hard-boiled eggs chopped and a pinch of salt; cook until the chicken is well infused with the sauce. Serve hot.

Paris.—Nothing is more Parisian than the present revue at the Theatre Martigny, called "Viva la République," by M. Sacha Guitry and M. Albert Willemetz. ## Trade Teachers' Summer Courses

State University to Conduct Summer School at Oswego Embracing Over Fifty Subjects—Free to State Residents.

The Division of Vocational and Extension Education of the University of the State of New York will offer this summer at the Oswego State Normal School a curriculum embracing over 50 subjects in vocational guidance and industrial education. These courses will be given on daily for a period of six weeks lasting from July 6 to August 12 and have been designed especially to meet the needs of supervisors and directors of vocational education and for teachers in the fields of industrial education and vocational guidance. All the courses may be taken for credit leading to supervisory certificates and to vocational teachers' licenses and a large number of them for credit leading to college degrees.

Admission to the summer school is limited to five groups of persons: (1) teachers and supervisors of industrial education and vocational guidance; (2) men and women who desire to become trade teachers; (3) trade teachers holding special vocational licenses who are working for permanent vocational teachers' certificates; (4) teachers working for supervisors' or directors' certificates in industrial education and vocational guidance; and (5) teachers, supervisors and directors who desire credits for a college degree.

To residents of the state of New York tuition is free but for residents outside the state a small fee is charged.

The advantages which Oswego offers both as an educational center and for opportunities for recreation are excellent. The school campus of 40 acres fronting on Lake Ontario enjoys one of the mildest summer climates in the state. A well-equipped tent colony situated along the shores of the lake will accommodate from 150 to 200 persons and a number of hotels and boarding houses are available for those who do not prefer camp life. The Sheldon Home situated in the midst of the camp colony offers admirable opportunities for study and library purposes. All forms of outdoor sports are available as Oswego and the Thousand Islands and other nearby summer resorts can be visited on week-end trips.

Coal First Employed for Melting Metals

Coal probably was burned for the production of superheated steam in the fabrication of metals during the Iron Age, as early as B. C. 1000, but the first authentic use of this fuel is traced to Greece, where it was burned in B. C. 200. These facts relating to the common coal of today are presented by Malcolm MacFarlane, general fuel inspector of the New York Central, in an article in the railroad's magazine.

"It seems reasonable," the writer says, "to believe that coal came into limited use with the discovery of metals, because of the more intense heat required to work these. On this assumption coal may have been used in the Iron Age as early as B. C. 1000. Reports indicate that coal was mined quite extensively in England during the Roman invasion, but the earliest reliable record of its use there is in A. D. 852."

After tramping unconsciously over the enormous beds of coal in the Alleghenies, pioneers of America discovered the first bed of coal on the Illinois river at Ottawa in 1679. But nearly another century passed, says Mr. MacFarlane, before actual mining began, and then it was in Virginia, at a point 12 miles above Richmond, on the James river. This was in 1750. During the next 25 years it came into general use in that region and made possible the manufacture of cannon for Washington's army—Detroit News.

Good Effect Gained by Proper Pictures

Pictures serve an admirable purpose in the decoration and furnishing of the small home.

By the very nature of their location on the wall they occupy some of the floor space that is so valuable in the small dwelling. If the little room has been rather crowded with furniture, pictures on the wall carry the eye upward and bring the attention from the lower part of the room to the upper, where there is a greater appearance of space.

Then, too, the subjects of the pictures may be chosen with a view to increasing the apparent size of the room. Pictures with a rather deep perspective give the eye a feeling of looking into the scene, down a corridor, into a valley, along a river, or otherwise creating an appearance of distance.

To do this removes much of the cramped feeling that invades a small room overcrowded with furniture. The choice of color in pictures also will have much to do with the decorative scheme of the room, and the same effect of spaciousness can be created with the judicious use of color.

K. G. & E. Drops First to City

Last evening's game between the Kingston Gas & Electric team and the City team, was a close one.

The Kingston Gas & Electric team, at the Athletic Field, Tuesday evening, at the hands of the Municipal Nine, who staged a rally in the fifth round, after being a bit groggy, with five clean walks to right. Score: 9 to 6.

Hoffman hit a triple to left in the first inning, which started the Gasmen off in fine style. He scored on McGraw's out, McGraw to Lynch. Burr was thrown out at first by O'Neill. McGraw made an error on Kirschner's grounder, going out of his territory. O'Neill had an easy out in front of him, but he batted Whitaker's slow roller. Quinn walked. Moseley was safe on O'Neill's second error, Kirschner scoring. Whitaker and Quinn scored on May's hit through the pitcher's box. Four runs for the inning.

The City scored one run in their half of the first on a walk and two hits.

In the second inning the Gasmen scored two more runs. McLean got a single to left field, after Hoffman was thrown out at first. Burr was safe on Ellsworth's lead throw to first. Kirschner flied out to McGraw. Whitaker went in McLean and Burr with a single to left field. Quinn ended the inning when he was thrown out at first.

The City kept nipping Crispell in the second and third inning, getting one run in each.

The fifth spelled defeat for the Gasmen, the City getting six runs. Crispell hit Lynch and the firework began. E. Baker hit to right, and took second when Hoffman made a wild throw. Both Lynch and Baker scored on McGraw's double to right. Cramer kept it up by hitting another single to right, and J. Baker was walked. O'Neill hit to Quinn, who threw to Hoffman, getting McGraw at the plate. Cramer cleaned the bases with a triple to right field and scored on Collins's single. Ellsworth hit to Doyle, who doubled Collins off first.

O'Neill was on the mound for the Municipal Nine and deserved to win, allowing the Gasmen only five hits.

Crispell, pitching for the Gasmen, was hit freely, especially in the fifth inning.

SIDE-LINERS

The Gasmen missed the services of Sickler. He has a bad arm.

McGraw was there with the willow, getting three out of three. His double in the fifth helped the City a great deal.

Dorho got his usual hit of the game in the second inning.

The Gas Company got quite a surprise, after beating most of the hard-out teams in the league.

The grandstand was clear after the hurricane in the fourth inning.

It looks like the City might cap the cup. Who can tell?

K. & M. Silk Mills and Schilling tonight.

Boston-New York Flier Wrecked, 25 Hurt

This picture shows the wreckage resulting when the "Owl," New York to Boston flier, ran into a freight train at Mansfield, Mass. One trainman was killed and twenty-five persons were injured.

Hop Off of Norge for Trip Across Pole

This picture, radioed to America from London, shows Amundsen's dirigible Norge just as it was to hop off on its memorial trip from Spitzbergen across the North Pole to Alaska. Note the silhouettes of the men below it, handling rigging preparatory to starting the bag on its way.

Memorial Service At Phoenicia

A very interesting memorial service has been planned by the churches of Phoenicia and Gloucester and will be held in the Baptist Church at Phoenicia under the auspices of the local Post of the American Legion. A large chorus choir under the direction of Karl Schwarzwald will render special music and a male quartet will sing. The service will begin at 8 o'clock, daylight saving time, and all ex-service men are urged to be present and sit in the section reserved for the members of the Legion. The pastor of the church, the Rev. A. J. Coffey, will give the address, assisted by the Rev. Ashley Skidmore, pastor of the Methodist Church. This is a real community service and everyone is invited to attend.

Coach Wed

Great Work Undertaken

The Theosophical Society of Adyar, Madras, is the organization that has taken on the huge work of establishing a library of valuable and rare manuscripts. It has, within a period of 20 years, been able to collect 12,847 manuscripts. The manuscripts and printed books in which the Adyar library is especially interested are those that bear chiefly on science, religion and philosophy. It is also rich in the collection of works in the Chinese, Japanese, Siamese, Burmese, Farsi and South Indian languages, besides numerous works in all the important European languages. During the first half of the year 1925, eight tours were undertaken for the collection of manuscripts, over 60 collections being examined in the course of these tours.

Cost of Reading Book

On the theory that time is money a statistician with nothing much to do has figured what it would cost a man on a $4,000 salary to read a 500-page book, and finds it comes to $30. In the case of a high-salaried executive the cost would virtually be prohibitive. Which convinces Keith Preston that the only persons who can really afford to read are the book reviewers, who are paid for it, and they are paid so little that they had better be doing something else. . . . Reading is the one luxury a poor man can afford. The world has no greater solace for most of us.—Copper's Weekly.

His Promise

A southwestern banker tells of a man in his state who was continually hard up and had so many notes at the bank that he could not leave town except on Sunday and holidays. There was one note of his falling due every banking day. He dropped into the bank one day and spoke casually to the president. "I came in to fix up that little matter of mine," he said. "I'd like to renew it for a while." The president had the note on his desk. He picked it up and studied it carefully. "Heavens," he finally said, "I don't think this note is made out properly." "Why not?" asked the borrower. "It reads: 'I promise to pay,' not 'I promise to renew.'"

Moslems' Holy Stone

The black stone of Mecca is a dark-colored stone about nine inches long, apparently a meteorite, built into the southeast corner of the temple of the Kaaba at Mecca. The Mohammedans claim that it was given to Abraham by an angel. Pilgrims to Mecca walk around the temple seven times, then kiss the black stone. The Kaaba was the temple of Mecca for ages before the time of Mohammed, and attracted pagan pilgrims in those days just as now it draws thousands of Moslems. It is a legend that the black stone was at one time white, but turned black owing to the spit of man.—Rialto.

Wood Versus Steel

An insurance investigator claims that wood is a better risk against fire than steel and concrete. Oak, he said, when charred on the surface, ceased to be dangerous, but the subject of all this was lately a paper, which resulted in loss of all. The most dangerous building in town was one that burned entirely with this wood, but the cost for insurance was prohibitive and the supply inadequate.

LEAGUE DISARMAMENT COMMISSION ADJOURNS

Geneva, May 26.—The League of Nations preliminary Disarmament Commission today adjourned. Another session is not expected before the end of August.

"The preliminary Disarmament Commission will mark time until the sub-committees report, Hugh Gibson, American delegate, told the International News Service. Questions regarding the agenda have been referred to the technical and military sub-committees. The report of the Drafting Commission, as outlined yesterday, was adopted before the preliminary commission adjourned. This report ignored the American suggestion for a separation of the questions of military and naval disarmament, and referred to the League Council the question of what shall constitute an unprovoked attack.

BARN AT GARDINER DESTROYED BY FIRE

A large barn on the former Wurts DuBois farm, a mile and a half southwest of the village of New Paltz, in the town of Gardiner, was destroyed by fire Monday afternoon. The live stock was rescued from the burning building and was sent to the New Paltz fire department which responded. However, the well was pumped dry in a few moments and the firemen were unable to save the barn. They turned their attention to the house, which was saved. The wood house and granary were also destroyed. How the fire started is not known.

Widely Known Mail Carrier Taken Ill as He Completed Covering His Route on Tuesday and Removed to His Home Where He Died.

Letter Carrier Harry T. Wheeler died early this morning at his home, No. 197 Washington avenue. He had been a sufferer from heart trouble for some time and Tuesday after he had completed covering his route he reported at the uptown post office on Fair street where he suddenly collapsed and was removed to his home by one of the employees.

Mr. Wheeler was one of the oldest letter carriers in years of service in the employ of the local department. He entered the postal service in Kingston on May 1, 1895, thirty-one years ago, and during the years that he had delivered mail in the city he became widely and favorably known. He was one of the few mail carriers still in active service who started work when the free delivery of mail was inaugurated in Kingston in 1895.

Besides his wife he is survived by one daughter, Miss Helen V. Wheeler. Mr. Wheeler was for many years an active member of St. James M. E. Church.

Kill Woodchucks At Gardiner

More than fifty Farm Bureau members and their friends attended a Farm Bureau woodchuck killing demonstration held at the farm of Cornelius Donohue at Gardiner on Monday, May 24. F. M. Wigsten, manager of the local Farm Bureau, was in charge and quickly demonstrated the use of "cyanogas" in efficiently controlling this farm and garden pest. In so doing he made it clear to those present that while some danger exists in using cyanogas if carelessly handled, the careful user will work with it without danger to himself but with deadly effect on "Friend Woodchuck." Damage to farm lands, meadows, pastures, grain fields and gardens by burrowing woodchucks has increased by leaps and bounds during late years. Farm Bureau members have appealed to their organization for help in establishing control measures. The cyanogas method as demonstrated at the Gardiner meeting is the quickest and most efficient method yet devised. It is also economical, costing on an average of three cents to treat each hole.

Demmy's Chauffeur. FINE $20 FOR SPEEDING.

Madera, Cal., May 26.—Jack Demmy may fear no man in the prize ring but he's scared of bandits on the open road.

This was the testimony of Robert Gates, the heavyweight champion's chauffeur, when he was tried for speeding in Judge Leroy Bailey's court here.

"We thought we were being chased by bandits," he told the judge after Traffic Officer Harrison who was the "chaser" testified the Demmy car was going 65 miles an hour. Gates' novel plea failed to move the judge who fined the chauffeur $20 and issued a bench warrant for Demmy's arrest whenever he returns to California for failure to appear yesterday.

Estelle Taylor, film star, Demmy's wife, was in the machine when Demmy and Gates were cited for speeding last March but she was not in court to add the weight of her testimony to the "bandit" case defense.

Duggan expected to reach Miami about 2 p. m., but strong headwinds along the coast may delay the Bureau Alms outfit.

Dunes of Lake Michigan

Scene in the Dune Country.

(Prepared by the National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.)

AT THE head of Lake Michigan, including the entire shoreline of Indiana and parts of the adjoining shores of Illinois and Michigan, there is a dune country, unique and wonderful and entirely different from our usual ideas of sand dunes.

The vegetation of the average desert or sandy region is usually an interesting example of the survival of the fittest, and most of the plant families remaining have adapted themselves to the severe conditions of their environment. Desert plants, too, are often strikingly beautiful when in blossom; but their period of growth and luxury is very short, lasting only through the rainy season.

Conditions are reversed in the Indiana dunes, for here there is never a long period of drought, and in place of a desert area there is a natural propagating garden, where a most astonishing number of rare and beautiful plants congregate, having migrated both from the north and south to this unusually favored locality.

Here, on the shores of a great fresh-water sea, whose moisture is constantly being carried southward by the prevailing northwest winds, and tempered both in summer and winter by its position on the lake, is a region so wonderful that it has been set aside by Indiana as a great state park for study and the recreation of millions of people of the Middle West.

There are about 20 miles of shoreline, averaging a mile or more in width and containing approximately 80 square miles of land, in the dunes, still unspoiled by commercial industries. This region is situated within easy reach of more than 10,000,000 people at a nominal cost for transportation. A visit to almost any one of the national parks is a luxury beyond the reach of the majority of the people of the Middle West; but the Lake Michigan dune region can be visited at all seasons and at a cost of, at the most, a few dollars. The dunes are popular even in midwinter, and many a party of students and other outdoor enthusiasts has enjoyed the scenery and the bracing air of the lake at that time of year.

Attractions Are Varied. The attractions of the dunes are so varied that all classes may here find recreation suited to their wishes. The tramp, the geologist, the botanist, the zoologist, the student of early American history, and those who seek only fresh air and clear skies, can find all they desire, and more than they hoped for, in this wonderful land of sandy beach and forested lake shore.

The outlines of the dunes are always graceful; for Nature, though sometimes cruel, displays wonderful skill as an artist, and the exposed wind-carved sands are arranged in beautiful curves and outlines against the sky.

The topography of the dunes lends itself to the formation of marvelous plant societies; great shallow ponds with their typical borders of marsh-loving plants; deep, sheltered hollows, perfectly dry at the bottom; active stream beds, thickly fringed with willows, alders and button-bush, with thickets of giant mallows on the sandy shores; north slopes, with trailing arbutus, water-gentian, partridge berry, hepatica and violet, and rare ferns and orchids spread in artistic profusion; moving dunes, whose leeward sides extend slowly and surely south, in time covering even tall trees with their smothering blanket of sand; old dunes, clothed to their crests with vegetation, and of intervals "blue-oaks" where remote woods have uncovered glacial tree trunks, gray and weather-beaten and entirely devoid of bark, but the wood still sound and perfectly preserved by the sand shores with which it was surrounded.

Many trees adapt themselves to the severe conditions on the more exposed dunes, frequently coming out from the forest to take advantage of the commanding sand, and in such exposed positions they are particularly free of the commoner, which also stand out from the forest. The Far North grow side by side with others whose natural habitat is many miles south of the lake, and the plant life is bewildering to the uninitiated and a joy to the botanist. The combination of underlying sand and humus, with abundant moisture, makes a condition of soil that is ideal, and the result is a luxuriant plant growth that is almost tropical.

The dune-floor vegetation is more striking than the arboreal growth, and the wealth of herbaceous plant life is remarkable. Even on the exposed lake beach and on newly formed sand drifts pioneer plants are constantly springing up. Hardy grasses, sea rockets, artemesias, sand cherries and many others take advantage of the slightest opportunity, and around these plants embryo dunes form, which in time grow and join the overhanging and fascinating panorama of dune succession.

As soon as a slight covering of humus accumulates, possession is taken by the stronger plant growth, and bearberry, juniper, arrow woods and sumacs soon fill up the vacant spaces, preparing the way for the tree growth that is waiting its turn.

The black oak is the most conspicuous tree of the older dunes, but it is accompanied by many others, mostly deciduous, although there are a few evergreens and one other conifer—the tamarack. Basswood, poplar, tulip, sumac, junberry, flowering dogwood, white and gray pines and occasionally white oaks are all to be found in the drier parts of the dunes; and in the lower lands sour gum, red maple, swamp white oak, pawpaw, cherry and the larger sumacs grow luxuriantly in the peaty soil.

Over all the taller growth are scattered drooping vines, softening the rigid outlines and adding their blossoms to the marvelous display.

The herbaceous plant life is even more varied and wonderful. Great masses of bird's-foot and other violets, lupines, phlox of different colors, trilliums, wax bells of wintergreen and blueberry, hepaticas, trailing arbutus—not just a few flowers, but acres of them and miles of acres—make a natural paradise which cannot be artificially duplicated.

Coloring in the Marshes. The marshes have their own individuality of sedges, cat-tails, reeds, and borders of the larger ferns—royal, cinnamon, and the interrupted or clintonia. The Virginia chain fern in one of the drier marshes crowds out the less vigorous plant life, coloring with its fertile fronds great stretches of the marsh a beautiful apple. The blending of browns and greens in the marshes softens the landscape to an exquisite sympathy of color in pleasing contrast to the more vivid coloring of the higher land adjoining.

It is in autumn, however, that the dune education is at its best, for then the entire region becomes a shifting landscape of gorgeous reds and yellows. Nature goes into her winter rest with a last effort in color that is beyond adequate description. The ever gum, red maple, sumac, and sumacns discard their modesty and vie with each other in a gorgeous riot of autumn coloring.

Many of the trees and lower shrubs and other plants bear edible fruits, providing a succulent larder for hosts of birds and small animals. The bird life of the region surrounding the end of Lake Michigan is very abundant, and during migration seasons in the Catted States are there more varieties of both land and shore birds to be seen than here.

The rusted groves, golden oaks, beaked oaks and the great blue herons still visit the dunes, and in winter the evening grosbeak, crowbeak and blue jays are attracted by the warmth of food.

Geologically, the dunes and dune country are old dunes, and the fascinating story of the glacial period surrounding Lake Michigan. The story by water-worn being their chance to the dunes as a most necessary element of their natural-ecology system.

Historically, also, the dunes have their place in the earlier history of the West. The old Indian trails can still be pointed out, and it was through the dunes that the pioneer French found their way from Detroit to the site of Chicago at the mouth of the Chicago river.

Future Beckons Young Americans

Achievements of Past Only Show Great Opportunities Ahead.

Great events of the past century century which lead some young men to complete that all the big things have been done, leaving no opportunity for them, as a matter of fact only go to show that even greater opportunities today lie ahead of them. P. M. Shephard, Executive Manager of the American Bankers Association, recently told members of the American Institute of Banking in New York. After reviewing the outstanding accomplishments in science, industry and finance during the last twenty-five years, Mr. Shephard emphasized the reward given men of achievement in America, especially in the financial field.

"The achievements of the past are the groundwork for the opportunities of today and tomorrow," he said. "There never was a time when so great were the possibilities of the individual. The world was never so ready and able to pay well for what it wants. For superior service to society under competitive conditions, whether through invention or production of useful articles, no reward is begrudged, particularly here in America."

"Adding to human comfort and human needs, these things make life finer and better. The world has shared, but it is in America that they have reached their highest development and utilization. The American spirit of useful enterprise, however, does not confine itself within our own borders. It permeates the entire world and renders great service to peoples other than our own."

"Let us pass over America's service to humanity in the war and consider what is being done now. Largely sheltered by the war and its demands after others, America has, in the war, loaned other peoples over a billion dollars. Last year alone a loan and a half in foreign loans was committed in the United States. American financial policy has so far readjusted our banking machinery to meet enlarged international obligations that stupendous loans, such as the $100,000,000 loan credit to Germany, are possible and the books closed after being open to public subscription only a few months."

"With our new world viewpoint in America have many great things yet to do. These things are typical of the broadened world viewpoint of American finance. It shows the vision necessary to the men who guide our business affairs today. Certainly this is an inspiration to this and the great opportunities which await us."

Bankers and business men of the leading towns of Taylor county, Texas, employed a county agent in spring, and requested that he vigorously promote boys' and girls' club activities. As a result of his work over 600 club members were enrolled. Work is being concentrated this year on poultry culling and grain corn seed selection. This fall there will be exhibits and contests, for which the business men are contributing generous prizes.
